THANK YOU & GOODBYE, DATO' KK LIM

21st February 2011 saw the passing of one of Ipoh's well-known philanthropists, Dato' Lim Keng Kay. PPCS would like to express its gratitude to Dato' KK Lim, as he was better known as, for his belief and willing support of care for the terminally ill in Ipoh. Even in infirmity Dato' KK would put forth ideas on how best to improve on the services that PPCS offers. His public spiritedness is well treasured by PPCS and, without doubt, by other NGOs in Ipoh as well.

Dato' KK was the main sponsor of PPCS's first car, a Kancil, and his spontaneous and generous responses to all the society's funding appeals had always encouraged us on in our work. When PPCS had to vacate its premises in the Perak Community Specialist Hospital in 2003, Dato' KK very generously offered No. 1, Jalan Lasam rent-free to PPCS until September 2006.

PPCS will miss this giant of a man with an equally big heart.

PPCS WELCOMES CHANDRIKA P. CHOO

PPCS is pleased to inform that Chandrika P. Choo is a new addition to its family and is designated as Care Coordinator of the home care team. Whilst having vast experience in the field of administration and public relations for the past 23 years, Chandrika's recent involvement in palliative care came from a personal experience while living in Ireland.

Having witnessed the benefits of a holistic approach in palliative treatment, she then trained in massage from an Alternative Medicine Practitioner upon her return to Malaysia. PPCS has recently incorporated massage as a complementary and holistic therapy in its caring provision and Chandrika works closely with the palliative care nurses to provide this service.

Chandrika's duties primarily involve Massage Therapy (home visits and at the PPCS centre), Social and Welfare liaison, Respite Care and assisting our Honorary Volunteer Co-ordinator with the Sunshine Hour Programme.

In line with our mission statement, we trust that our clients and their respective carers will benefit from such intervention and wish Chandrika a long and happy association with the society.

Touch as a Complementary Therapy ~ the Benefits of Massage ~

By touching a body, we touch every event it has experienced. For a few brief moments we hold all of a client's stories in our hands. We witness someone's experience of their own flesh, through some of the most powerful means possible: the contact of our hands, the acceptance of the body without judgment, and the occasional listening ear. With these gestures we reach across the isolation of the human experience and hold another person's legend. In massage therapy, we show up and ask, in so many ways, what it is like to be another human being. In doing so, we build a bridge that may heal us both.

-- Tracy Walton

"The Health History of a Human Being"
Massage Therapy Journal (Winter 1999)

Massage is a complementary therapy that is used together with conventional medical treatment. It is thought almost universally to be a beneficial therapy. People living with cancer benefit from massage both physically and emotionally as it soothes the soul and mind.

This form of therapy is usually done in a very relaxing and comfortable environment and lasts between half an hour to one and a half hours depending on the area being massaged. It promotes muscle relaxation and stress reduction. It helps relieve headaches, backaches, joint pain, stiffness and insomnia. As muscles are rubbed, blood vessels dilate. The stimulated blood flow increases lymph circulation, resulting in increased oxygen supply and improved overall circulation in the body. The increased blood flow helps to release those feel-good endorphins that make us feel smiley inside.

For cancer patients, the Swedish Massage Therapy Technique is usually recommended as it is gentle and relaxing. Swedish massage is a system of therapeutic, manual manipulations of the body's soft tissues (muscles, tendons, ligaments and fascia) for the purpose of enhancing circulation to restore or maintain health and overall well-being. Increased circulation aids in the delivery of oxygen and nutrients to all cells and cleanses the tissues of cellular metabolic waste. Massage also relaxes tense or spastic muscles, increases joint range of motion, soothes the nervous system, increases respiration and reduces swelling from the accumulation of fluid in the extremities and in the removal of toxins from the tissues.

Touch is the core ingredient of massage therapy and also combines science and art. Practitioners learn specific techniques of massage and use their sense of touch to determine the right amount of pressure to apply and locate areas of tension and other soft-tissue problems.

As touch also conveys a sense of caring, an important component in the healing relationship, one of the most helpful forms of support we can offer a loved one with cancer is the use of the said touch. Massage can channel the tender loving touch we wish to give our loved one in a very holistic and individual way.
